Peace Officers Believe Godfrey Was Suicide

Despite the non-commital verdict of the coroner's that found Rae Godfrey, San Francisco policeman, who committed suicide in a Bret Harte Inn bath room Monday, peace officers investigating the affair believe that Godfrey died by his own hand. The coroner's jury found he came to his death by gunshot wounds inflicted by persons unknown.

The story of his death was told exclusively in the Nevada City Nugget last Monday.

As a matter of fact it is regarded as quite possible that the desperate man took a good grip of his revolver and fired all six shots before unconsciousnees loosened his fingers.

San Francisco newspapers commenting on Godfrey's suicide, hold that the yoliceman "took the easiest way out." Richmond Tatham, San Francisco police inspector made a thorough investigation of all details and circumstances surrounding Godfrey's demise, and he stamps the case as one of suicide.

Godfrey was said to be one of several San Francisco policemen under investigation in San Francisco. Under questioning by San Francisco detectives neither Mrs. Godfrey, the dead man's wife, nor Miss Sara Wood, who accompanied him to Grass Valley, were able to shed any like on the reasons for the suicide.

He was alleged to have come to San Francisco in search of his wife, from whom he was separted, and he was reported to have threatened to kill her.

SAN JUAN RIDGE MADE TELEPHONE HISTORY IN 1878

Jack Wolff Tells the Story of the Building and use of First Phone System in U. S.

By JACK WOLFF
From Standard Oil Bulletin

During the last half-century America has lost track of the Ridge Telephone Company, has forgotten its name and its accomplishments—which is a pity. For although the telephone was invented on the Atlantic seaboard, this daring organization made history by building and operating the first long-distance telephone system in the world. The time was the late eighteen-seventies; the place, strangely enough, was the hydraulic gold-mining fields of Nevada county, California.

It was inthe days when Alexander Graham Bell and his Bell Company were racing with the Western Union Telegraph Company for control of the "speaking telephone." Bell and his associates worked feverishly to perfect their invention; Thomas Edison and his associates, on behalf of the Western Union, worked to perfect theirs. The Supreme Court gave the Bell Company the exclusive rights to the telephone, although Edison's invention of the carbon transmitter made Bell's instruments commercially practicable. And the instruments installed on the pioneer Ridge Telephone Company line were "Edison phones," as they were popularly called, although the name "American Speaking Telephone Co." was stamped on each box. In the years that have passed since this court decision, Edison's part in the development of the telephone has been quite forgotten.

Accordnig to the records of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the first long-distance line was 45 miles in length, and ran between Boston and Providence. It was built in 1880. The Ridge Company's line was 60 miles in length, and extended from French Corral, in Nevada county, to Milton, in Sierra county. It was built in 1887. Original letters and documents still extant prove this date. Furthermore, the New England line was unsuccessful, and was immediately torn down; the Ridge line was not only successful, but was operated until after the beginning of the present century.

This is not saying that the California system was always profitable. The first annual statement of the Ridge Telephone Company showed expenses for the period from December 1, 1887,, to December 1, 1897,to be $2993.08, and the total receipts from tolls to be $464.03, after paying $201.51 to the Western Union for interline messages. Later returns were probably better; but profit or no profit from operating the line, the convenience of this system was what counted with its builders. They were in the gold-mining business.

The famous San Juan Ridge of northern Nevada county was the center of operation for three mammoth

"HANT" IN HOSPITALITY CAR GIVES DELEGATES SAD CASE OF JITTERS

Something was wrong. Here they were, three ladies, driving out in a courtesy car along the beautiful Tahoe-Ukiah highway on a heavenly afternoon, with thoughts a thousands miles away from anything supernatural.

But right in the midst of admiring the dogwood, or the fresh spring tips on the pines would come, a muffled groan, a subterranean whimper, and now and then an impish yip, as though a demon tending his "three on a grid," had gotten too close to the fire.

Finally the driver, busy pointing out the scenic features of the drive was asked to listen. He did, and turned a bit pale. He stopped the car.

All quiet now. Not a sound. "It must be in the gears,," muttered the host. The guests got out, examined the car from stem to stern. The polite traffic officer gave it the once over. Finally convinced it must be something new in the way of "canary birds," guests and driver got back into the car and drove but a little way, when the "hant" again began his lamentations. Subduded squeaks, an occasional muffled cry, as though rising from the last circle of hades, punctuated the comments on the scenery, the lovely afternoon and what a good time the delegates to the Northern California Federation of Women's Clubs, were having. At intervals on the way home came the ghostly yowl until the driver and guests had the jitters.

At home at last the wife of the host said: "Have you seen Fido?" A great light dawned. "No, but I've heard him!" He lifted the back cushion and, there, mixed up with the car tools was the diminutive Fido, who had not enjoyed the ride.

SIERRA CITY CLAIM JUMPER IS ARRESTED

The first arrest recorded for claim jumping in the 1934 era of gold mining revival, was effected last month when E. A. Humphreys, mining man of Sierra City, was arrested on a warrant sworn by Milton Richardson of San Francisco.

It is alleged that Humphrey's attempted to jump the claim of the Sovereign mine, property of the Sovereign-Comet Gold Mining Company, of which Richardson is a stockholder. Humphrey is stated to have been trying to effect a sale of the property for a commission, but had been unsuccessful. Members of the company then tried to sell the mine and a buyer was found and substantial amount placed in escrow, pending final examination of the property. Upon arrival at the mine, notices were said to have been found forbidding trespass and stating Humphreys was in possession of it. This, it is claimed, halted negotiations, with the result that a warrant was sworn to for Humphrey's arrest.

Stockholders of the company, incensed over this attempt to jump their property, are said to have declared their intention of making an example of Humphreys.

Mr. John Ubauer visited Nevada City Saturday.

STREETS WASHED FOR CLUB DELEGATES

Just for those that carelessly did not note the difference, Herb Hallett, superintendent of streets, last Friday morning, had his force out bright and early and washed off Broad, Commercial and Pine streets, so that for the city's guests promenading to the Elk's hall for the 9 o'clock session of the Northern California Federation of Women's clubs, Nevada City presented a bright and shining face. Nevada City streets are usually clean, but for this occasion Hallett certainly gave the streets a scouring, washed them behind the ears, so to speak.

MAY DAY FETE TO BE COLORFUL EVENT TUESDAY

Plans are almost complete for the big May Day Fete to be held next Tuesday evening in the Firemen's Hall. Mrs. Talbot and assistants are making every effort to make the program the best ever given.

The May Queen for the dance will arrive by airplane. Two little boys are to act as traffic officers and a young fireman will be present to see that the airplane lands safely.

Marjarie Dixon and Dale Berger, are to be the two little train bearers to the queen and ride in tiny airplanes.

Costumes are being made and are to be the most colorful ever displayed at any of the annual May Day events.

The queen contest ends Saturday afternoon with three little girls running very close. They are: Elsie Schreiber, Madge Pianezzi, and Etta Vanesh. They are working strenously in selling tickets to the May Day affair.

Many tickets are still to be sold, and those who wish to help are requested to purchase them now instead of at the door.

MRS. NAN DOUGLASS THRILLS AUDIENCE OF ARIZONA MUSIC LOVERS

The Gazette, of Phoenix, Arizona, of April 21st says: "Before a crowd that packed to overflowing the Women's Club Auditorium and holiding the audience in almost breathless silence by their artistry, Mrs. Nan Douglass, contralto, and Rachel Marden, pianist, gave an ambitious and thoroughly interesting concert last evening.

"Mrs. Douglass sang with perfect control and an interpretive under standing which was excellence itself. In Schubert's "The Erl King," sung in German, she reached the pinnacle of achievement, this being done with dramatic instinct and a beauty only too seldom heard."

"Mrs. Douglass has one of the most promising voices ever heard in Phoenix and will make oratorio her chosen field."

Women's Civic Club Thanks All Who Helped

The Women's Civic Club held a meeting Monday evening with a nice attendance of members. Reports of the convention were given and much gratitude was expressed that there were no accidents, no unpleasant incidents and that the cost of the three day celebration was well within the club's budget.

A vote of thanks was given the Nevada City Nugget, the Morning Union, the Sacramento Bee and the traffic squad for cooperation and publicity.

A report of 97 cars responded to the call for transportation. Due thanks was extended to all who were of asistance in taking the guests on the sight-seeing tour. Thanks was also given all those who entertained guests in their homes, and to all those taking part or in any way assisting.

New officers were installed Monday evening and the retiring president, Miss Minnie Brand, was presented with a floor lamp in appreciation of her year of conscientious and faithful service.

THRONGS AT HIGH SCHOOL SEE, HEAR GOOD PROGRAM

Excellent Education Week Entertainment Given Under Extremely Uncomfortable Conditions

Education Week's chief event, observed Last Wednesday evening by a big gathering of parents and school children at the high school, attested the interest of this community in its school.

The close crowded quarters into which parents and children were jammed in order to hear the very excellent program bore witness to the urgent need for an auditorium at the high school in which community gatherings of this kind can be comfortably held. After seating the audience the two orchestras were crowded into a space not nalf big enough. The accoustics of the room were also noticeably bad especially during the musical numbers.

The address of J. A. Burkman, on the staff of the State Department of Education, covered in a masterly manner, the problems which are now confronting education in California. At present taxes of all kinds in the state are costing each man, woman, and child in Calif. $30 a year. In attempts to reduce this burden, which is likely to increase in the next biennium, the legislature has entertained all kinds of bills, wise and otherwise, according to Mr. Burkman.

The speaker read a list of the measures introduced in the last legislature all of which were intended to cut down the cost of education and very few of which would not affect the efficiency of the teaching. He predicted that more bills of this character will be introduced in the next session of the legislature.

Principal Carlson, of the Washington grammar school, presided. Musical numbers were provided by the grammar school and high school orchestras under the direction of L. E. Sweeney, in charge of the high school musical department.

Group songs, a duet, and a violin solo by grammar school pupils, and a duet of cornets played by Mr. Sweeney and Cecil Schiffner, were features of the evening's program.

Mr. Carlson extended all parents an earnest invitation to visit the class rooms of Nevada City schools this week.

LOGS FOR SCOUT HALL ARE PEELED

Two hundred and twenty-five logs have been peeled, and that is enough to construct the log lodge on the ground generously granted the Boy Scouts by the P. G. & E., company adjacent to High street.

This was the result of work accomplished under the leadership of Carl Tobiassen and ten scouts who helped peel the last logs on Saturday afternoon. The construction of the lodge, will be started as soon as the logs have dried sufficiently and will be in charge of Mr. Tobiassen, to whom the building committee of the Boy Scout Council have entrusted this job.

Mr. Tobiassen and the Scout Council desires to thank all those members of the council and the Veterans of Foreign Wars who have helped from time to time in peeling the great pile of logs that are now ready for building purposes.

HOGE MINE FINDS NEW LEDGE ON 1000 FT. LEVEL

In mining operations at the Hoge Development company's property, northeast of Nevada City, miners struck a new ledge in the foot wall on the 1,000 foot level on the contact. Arthur Hoge, superintendent, stated it looks very good.

A crew is crosscutting on the 1,000 foot level to the south at present. Some time ago a ledge of excellent ore was struck in one of the upper levels by miners in cross cutting operations, that yielded rich returns.

About 25 men are now employed at the Hoge mine.

Nevada County Benefit From Riley Tax Plan Outlined By Seawell

Jerrold L. Seawell, State Senator from this district, has summarized in the following letter the benefits that should flow to Nevada county tax payers as a result of the Riley-Stewart tax reform measure passed by the ..people ..as a ..constitutional amendment.

Roseville April 23, 1934
Editor, Nevada City Nugget:
Nevada City, Calif.

During the 1933 session of the California Legislature, several Senators including myself, were severly criticised for not immediately supporting the Clowdsley-Inman Bill, which was constructed to equalize taxes between Public Utility and Common Property taxpayers.

I stated at that time that my reason for not supporting the same, was due to the fact that it did not give relief to the common property taxpayer who was in dire distress then, and in many instances is at the present time.

A chart published by the California County Tax Equalization Association, of which Supervisor J. H. Hunter of Lassen county is chairman, has come into my possession. It is interesting to note what this plan has done for Nevada county and what it will continue to do.

Previous to the passage of Constitutional Amendment No. 30, the assessed valuation of Nevada county was $6,120,015.00 with a tax rate of $3.60. This tax rate raised the sum of $220,320.54 for the General Fund of Nevada county.

Following the passage of Constitutional Amendment No. 30, and by transferring the school costs from the county to the State, the assessed valuation was reduced $23,370.00, and the tax rate was reduced from $3.60 to $2.10, showing a total savings of $92,290.99.

With the return of the Public Utilities to the local assessment rolls for local taxation, to be paid on the same basis as the common property taxpayer pays his taxes, the assessed valuation of this county will be increased $2,632,150.00, making the total assessed valuation in the county for the years 1935-36 to be the sum of $8,728,795.00. With the addition of these new properties to the assessment rolls the county tax rate will again be reduced to the sum of $1.47, or a total reduction of $2.13 over the original tax rate prior to the enactment of this amendment, making a total cash savings to the common property taxpayers of this county of $130,-904.63. This new tax rate will give Nevada county one of the lowest tax rates of any county in the State for the years 1935, and thereafter.

COMMUNITY IN DRIVE TO AID ST. MARY'S SISTERS

The Sisters of Mercy, who conduct Mount Saint Mary's Academy in Grass Valley, are selling tickets for a raffle to raise funds to pay off an indebtedness which has been accumulating for the past two or three years.

The Sisters have served the people of Nevada county for the past 69 years and the institution in Grass Valley is an asset to the entire county of which everybody may well be proud.

Members of the committee sponsoring the raffle are: W. E. Wright, district attorney; S. Lee Leiter, The Lace House; Maurice Kach, Maurice Photographer; William J. Sproul, Electric Shop; Fred Foote, Electric Shop. Committees are organizing in Grass Valley and Nevada City.

Last week Lee Leiter, Pat Foley, Charles Leiter and Harry Bogart, visited the towns of Alleghany, Downieville, Forest City, North San Juan and Sierra City, where they gave out more than 2000 tickets for sale. Since that time several letters have been received by Mr. Leiter advising him that the tickets are almost all sold and more will probably be needed within a short time.

Approximately 6000 tickets are to be sold at 50c apiece. It is the duty of every man, woman and child in the county to buy at least one ticket to help the beloved Sisters in their time of need.

Three prizes will be given. First prize: Electric Refrigerator or Radio, value $125.00 (winner has the privilege of choosing make of refrgerator or radio). Second prize: One year commercial course at Mount Saint Mary's Academy, value $125.00. Third Prize: $25.00 merchandise order which will be honored at any store in Grass Valley or Nevada City. The committee hopes to have several more prizes which will be announced at a later date.

The drawing will take place in Grass Valley on Saturday June 2, 1934, under the supervision of the committee sponsoring the raffle.

Headquarters for raffle tickets at Grass Valley is located at 219 Main Street, corner of Church Street, where the prizes are on display.

PHIL G. SCADDEN ENTERS RACE FOR COUNTY ASSESSOR

Former Postmaster, City Councilman and Fire Chief Announces His Candidacy for County Office

Phil G. Scadden this morning announces that he is a candidate for county assessor. The many friends that Mr. Scadden has made during a life time of business responsibility and public service will hail this announcement with genuine pleasure. As postmaster of Nevada City for 12 years he established a reputation for good business management, efficient public service and active interest in all constructive community and county enterprises, that has won him friends in every corner of Nevada county and now assures his candidacy the widest support.

Phil Scadden began his business life early. When he was knee high to a grasshopper he carried papers for the old Daily Transcript. Nevada City then had a population of 4,000 people and the mining industry was at one of its highest peaks.

Later on he clerked in the historic Jackson grocery and graduating from that store entered the employ of Charley Mulloy one of the most genial and successful business men in Nevada City's history.

Having taken his master's degree, so to speak, in the school of life, he engaged in business for himself in 1895 and continued almost to the time that he took over the bakery, now belonging to Karl Kopp. He was owner and operator of Nevada City's leading bakery until 1922, when he became postmaster.

Mr. Scadden has always been civic minded and public spirited. He served for three terms on the Nevada City council and up till recent years has been active in the fire department, serving as chief in 1899-1900.

Supporting his candidacy for county assessor are a number of prominent leaders in the county. He has a host of friends in every walk of life who will not only wish him well, but will do all in their power to elect him.

CHAMPION MINE TAILINGS

The Champion mine tailings, on the old Champion mine property, east of the Nevada City limits, is being worked one shift a day at present by C. A. Anderson and partner of Marysville, in their dredging operations. Between 500 and 600 yards of gravel are being moved per day. A good sized mound of worked gravel is piled up back of the dredger and will soon form a ridge as the dredging operations continue up stream.

AT LAST . . . you'll say, here is the kitchen equipment I have always longed for.
A range that is so colorful and clean-looking—a range that is so quiet and quick in operation—that is what you'll find in the modern fully automatic electric range. And when summer days grow hot this modern electric range with the insulated oven will not heat up the kitchen. That is one feature every woman should welcome.
And for hot water? Certainly you have plenty of it from an automatic storage type electric water heater. No more lifting, filling, heating, pouring with a tea kettle. Just turn a faucet and have hot water in abundance for every household need.
Why wait any longer? You can have both electric range and water heater installed on easy purchase terms. On the new low rate they are most economical to operate.
Pacific Gas and Electric Company employs 10,000 workers in 46 counties of California; it distributes $19,000,000 annually in wages and salaries.

OLD ROAD AGITATION STIRS CAMPTONVILLE

CAMPTONVILLE, April 19.—The citizens of this section were considerably upset Wednesday over a petition that was being circulated asking for federal funds with which to construct a road from Dobbins to the Yuba Pass highway. The day before, a committee from Dobbins, called on the business men here, leaving the petition, and leaving the impression that the proposed road would connect with the Yuba Pass highway in this vicinity, and it was not known differently until Tuesday's Appeal Democrat came, carrying a story about the road, stating that the plan proposed to connect Dobbins with the Yuba Pass highway at Indian Valley.

The local people have never been in favor of this route and not only refused to get behind the movement, but started a counter petition, entering objection to the federal government putting the relief funds into this project.

The plan of the Dobbins committee is to get the government to put all their funds for the county in this one project rather than have many smaller projects such as the CWA just finished. Thus, instead of making many smaller improvements beneficial to groups of taxpayers at different places in the county, where the supervisors were unable to spend money, the whole fund would be diverted for the construction of this one road.

The Indian Valley-Woodleaf road has been a bone of contention among people of this section for quite some time, and it is hard to realize why the city of Marysville or the residents of the county should favor a road through such a difficult snow section as this road is scheduled. Although Marysville is the county seat, and it would be natural for the people of this section to have contact there, as long as they advocate roads through barriers of rock and snow and distance, all around and anyplace except directly into this section and the Yuba Pass highway at this point, they cannot expect to get the business and trade from this section which will naturally go to Nevada county.

MINING NEWS

EMPRESS MINE

Forty men are busily engaged in mining and milling ore at the Empress mine property in the Newtown district. This mine, under the capable management of Superintendent E. C. Jacobs, is expected to develop into one of the best quartz properties in the district.

KEYSTONE MINING COMPANY

A crew at the Keystone Divide mine west of Grass Vallely have sunk the new three compartment shaft 80 feet of the projected 500 feet. The new shaft will cut various ledges and ore bodies. A 45 foot headframe has just been completed. J. J. Jordan is superintendent.

OPTIMO GRAVEL MINE

Two shifts of 14 men are drifting in the Optimo gravel mine on Shady Creek, nor of Nevada City. The tunnel is now in 1100 feet.

HOGE DEVELOPMENT COMPANY

A crew of about 25 men are develpoing and mining in the three compartment shaft of the Hoge mine, on a one day shift. The mill is also working one shift. A. W. Hoge is superintendent of the property.

SAN JUAN MINE

Superintendent C. J. Lyser has 18 men employed in mining and developing the San Juan mine north of North San Juan. The vein is showing up strong with excellent values. Over 100 tons of ore is shipped to Seattle, Washington each month, where it is milled by special method.

PENNSYLVANIA MINE

Twenty men are employed in rehabilitating the Pennsylvania mine in Brown's Valley. The crew is cleaning out and retimbering the 195 foot shaft and erecting a 50 foot head frame. H. Whitney is superintendent.

PHOENIX MINE

Three shifts of 22 men are making headway at the Phoenix mine, below Grass Valley. Machinery is now electrically equipped and extensive mine development is under way. T. S. Davey is superintendent.

IDAHO-MARYLAND MINES CO.

The greatest surface industrial activity in the Grass Valley district is being conducted at the Idaho-Maryland Mines Company property, where construction work is progressing on the Idaho-Maryland mill, the old and new Brunswick shafts, and the tailings plant. The flotation plant which will handle 300 tons of tailings per day, is rapidly nearing completion. The largest Dorr classifier ever made, a ten-ton unit, has just been installed, along with flotation benches and Oliver filters. A large mine vault is to be located in the refinery. Dividends of approximately 21% were declared last year on Idaho-Maryland mine stock.

MURCHIE MINE

The Murchie mine, east of Nevada City, is cross cutting at the 1600 level through the big blue vein toward the east. Plans are to sink to the 2000 foot level and then raise vertically, for a new shaft. About 250 tons of ore per day is being mined and milled. The Independence shaft is to be sunk 800 feet and then used to hoist ore. The present shaft is carrying practically all the ore that can be hoisted by it. The Newmont company, owners of the Murchie mine, recently purchased additional property.

REMINGTON HILL GRAVEL

Frank Crampton, of Remington Hill placer mine at the head of Steep Hollow Creek, states that lack of water is curtailing hydraulic operations. Five men are now employed at the property and only sufficient water is available at present to permit operations for two hours each day.

McDONALD RANCH TAILINGS

Dragline equipment is being installed to assist with the sluice box and centrifugal pumping apparatus at the McDonald Ranch tailings lease below Grass Valley on the old North Star mine ground. This added equipment will assist in handling many hundreds of yards of the tailings per day. Cash Cook is working ten men at the plant. The new ball mill is being operated three shifts daily regrinding the sand and recovering sulphides lost through early methods of ore reduction. Values of $3.00 per ton are being realized from the mine tailings.

Mrs. Etta Los Kamp is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. O. E. Schiffner and Mr. Schiffner. Mrs. Los-Kamp came up from San Francisco to attend the wedding dinner given Milton F. Schiffner and his bride, the former Miss Ellen Bolger, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The reptile was making an escape up the side of the road, when the driver whipped out his old trusty and snapped off the snake's head, bringing the remaining part to town.

In another column of this issue, will be found the announcement of W. E. Wright, as a candidate for reelection to the office of District Attorney of the County of Nevada.

In performing the many duties of District Attorney for the past eleven years, Mr. Wright has become intimately acquainted with all of its problems, and, from actual and practical experience, has learned how to meet and solve them to the greatest advantage and best interest of the count and the public.

CHEVROLET When you pay the price of a Knee-Action car, you naturally want genuine Knee-Action and all that goes with it. You want the new gliding ride at its best. You want the huskiest, sturdiest front-end you can buy. And, of course, you want shock-proof steering. You pay for them all—but you get them all, in the low-price field, only from Chevrolet. The reason is simple. Fully-enclosed Knee-Action wheels are costly to build—so costly that only Chevrolet, world's largest builder of cars, can afford to make the necessary huge investment in new machinery—and still keep prices among the lowest of the low. Only Chevrolet has the resources and the assured volume of sales that permit this extra production cost. Chevrolet does it because Chevrolet believes that, to KEEP ON SELLING THE MOST CARS, YOU MUST KEEP ON BUILDING THE BEST.

SAN JUAN RIDGE

hydraulic gold-mining companies: The Milton Mining and Water Company, of French Corral; the Eureka Lakes and Yuba Canal Companies, of North San Juan; and the North Bloomfield Blue Gravel Mining Company, of North Bloomfield. All three were, in the late '70's, huge corporations; they controlled the mining operations on the tremendously rich Ridge.

Some of their mines were as much as 60 miles from the mountain reservoirs high in the Sierra, and toward the end of each summer, when water was scarce, quick communication became vital. When news of the invention of the telephone reached these miners they were struck with the apparent ability of this new device to annihilate space. It was just what they wanted—if it would work. Instant control from the mines over the various ditch systems that carried veritable rivers of water down the Ridge meant the elimination of immense water losses, which would prolong the mining season—and that meant more gold.

So these companies formed the Ridge Telephone Company and commissioned the California Electrical Works, then at 134 Sutter Street, and later at 35 Market Street, San Francisco, to build a 60-mile line—and to make it work! The contractors built it, and it worked. It worked for more than 20 years.

The lion's share of credit for the success of this historic pioneer telephony belongs to Paul Seiler, who later became a San Francisco distributor of telephone equipment. Some of his original telephone boxes, with their square-cornered bells, are still to be found in use far back in the mountains.

There were 30 instruments on the line when it was opened for service, and approximately 20 of these were in toll offices; usually the latter were located in post-offices in the towns the line traversed. These formed the nerve-center of the San Juan Ridge, which lies between the canons of the Middle Fork and the South Fork of the Yuba river. The Western Union Telegraph Company had a direct line from Nevada City to North San Juan, where interline arrangements were made with the Ridge Telephone Company. This placed the most remote community on the Ridge line in prompt communication with the rest of the United States. News flew swiftly, and business tranactions were speeded wonderfully by the "speaking telephone."

From an ancient printed list of rules of the Ridge Company, signed by R. McMurray, Superintendent, we learn that the telephones were not to be used except by those in charge of the offices. A message, called a "dispatch," was written on a regular form by the sender; the operator "sent" it. Charges were scheduled as follows: Dispatches to the San Juan office, not more than 20 words, 50 cents; each additional 20 words or less, 25 cents. From San Juan, and from or to any other office, not more than 10 words, 25 cents; each additional two words or less, 25 cents. Anything smaller than two-bits was "chicken-feed" in those days.

One interesting rule was: "Persons in charge of offices will be allowed to see the line for their own business free of charge, but as the use of the line exhausts the battery power, it is not to be used for idle talking." Another rule stated: "The use of obscene or profane language through the telephone is strictly prohibited." A pay-roll messenger might be robbed, or a shipment of gold removed from a stage with the aid of firearms; but the forthright words that might express the losers' true feelings were subject to deletition.

On June 18, 1880, the first all complaints about service on the long-distance telephone was written. It concerned an important shipment of gold, and the message was not delivered. Wrote this aggrieved patron: "I cannot understand this inconsistent irregularity, especially after I so particularly instructed the operator." Officers of the law used the telephone to speed the description of escaped convicts, robbers, and murderers through the region.

In the '60's and '70's this mining region was perhaps the foremost spot in the country in the adoption of new inventions. Here the first industrial use was made of the electric arc-lamp, the Burleigh air-drill, and the electrical transmission of powe. And here modern tunnel-building was begun, when Hamilton Smith, Jr., built the one-and-one-half-mile Malakoff Tunnel. Up to that time tunnels were excavated from one end, sometimes from both. But, in addition to working from two ends, Smith sank five shafts and worked both ways from each. With 12 faces being pushed forward simultaneously, the completion of the job was a matter of months instead of years.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart

Washington.—Anyone who attempts to interpret Washington news or appraise its effects meets a circumstance frequently where the only course is one of watchful waiting. There is no alternative. Complex situations must work out; ulterior purposes must be disclosed to a slight degree, if there are such purposes, and some scent must be had of the factors and influences at work. Otherwise, appraisal of the potential effects usually will miss its mark under circumstances of that kind.

Dr. Wirt's Charges

Of such a type were the charges by Dr. William A. Wirt, the school superintendent from Gary, Ind., who asserted that "brain trusters" of the Roosevelt administration were seeking to overthrow our form of government and establish a communistic or Russian Soviet state in its place. Doctor Wirt's accusations came out of the blue sky, so to speak, because there was no advance notice of them. Of course, there were thousands of persons who were uneasy about the trend of events and the plans of the New Dealers. Apparently, however, most of them were unwilling to make themselves a target for the unbelieving by becoming vocal about their opinions. So, the setting in which Washington observers found themselves was, to say the least, a new one.

With these facts in mind, I have awaited an exposition of Doctor Wirt's charges before attempting to analyze them or to fit them into other things that have been happening to make a complete picture. His appearance before the house committee of inquiry left nothing to be desired in the dramatics. He was there, accompanied by that famed attorney, former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, which was, in itself, a surprise. And Doctor Wirt stood up against the barrage of attempts to discredit him! He never flinched; he fought back, and he was apparently convinced of his own findings, a fact that gave him added courage.

Doctor Wirt wasted no words in telling of the famous party in a nearby Virginia home where Lawrence Todd, Washington representative of the Russian Soviet news agency "Tass" and several "satellites" of the brain trust were at dinner with the Indiana educator. He quoted Todd as the authority for the statement that President Roosevelt was the "Kerensky" of the present revolution and that presently Mr. Roosevelt would be supplanted by a "Stalin," even as occurred in Russia.

Of course, Mr. Todd has no part in the government, officially, and a good many of those who scoffed at Doctor Wirt originally contended the charges were just "baloney." But he made the statements under oath and their effect now is the thing with which we are concerned. For to say that the charges have had no effect is to make a statement that the moon is made of green cheese.

Reaction Sets In

To those of us whose job it is to keep a finger on the pulse of public sentiment, it has been apparent for several months that a reaction against many of the New Deal principles had set in. I, for one, however, was unable to gauge it accurately. I could not tell how deeply rooted these convictions were. It required some such incident as the Wirt charges to focus attention on the fact that there were doubters before most of us here could gain an idea of the "oppositionist" movement that appeared to exist. Let me say at this point, too, that it is apparent Mr. Roosevelt is not the only target; the criticism seems to be more of the ideas prompted by his brain trust advisers than the President's own reform or recovery principles. There is a decided difference, one realizes, between the two, for one group in the administration is promoting reform and another recovery.

Here is where the Wirt testimony becomes important in its effect. By making the charges, Doctor Wirt directed attention to the two schools of thought. In effect, he has called upon the country to distinguish between reform and recovery programs, and has asked the question whether we shall sacrifice recovery in order that reform ideas may be forced down the throats of those who find it difficult to swallow untried theories.

There can be no doubt that several millions of Americans who, heretofore, were willing to trust Mr. Roosevelt to run the whole show, are now making individual examinations of the structure which the New Dealers have, or propose to, set up. I think it equally true as well that these examinations by individuals will result in a crystallizing of opinions more than has happened up to this time. They undoubtedly will find some good and some bad, some workable and some unworkable, items among the New Deal plans. That ought to be a wholesome thing for the country. History seems to prove that a cross section of our national mind is nearly always correct after the hysteria dies down. Thus, the opinions I gather around Washington stress the importance of the reform that obviously is going to result from New Deal methods. But they emphasize equally the importance of the Wirt testimony in balking an onrushing wave of so-called reforms that so many persons consider to be actually destructive of the basic and proved practices of our commerce and industry.

And, after all, that is the point at issue in this country today. Doctor Wirt quoted Mr. Todd as having said that "Roosevelt is in midstream and the current is too strong for him to turn back." I still have faith in our system of government and I have more faith in a majority opinion of the people of the United States. Since Doctor Wirt testified, they are on their guard. It may be that the sun of the brain trust theorist is setting.

Badly Muddled

One more observation about the Wirt affair: In a long service in Washington, I have seen few hearings as badly muddled by a committee of congress. Each of the members of the committee knew, of course, that the atmosphere was surcharged with politics. Some of the Democrats obviously were afraid that Doctor Wirt was going to explode a bombshell of politics that would do their party no good at all, and some of the Republicans were afraid that Doctor Wirt would not explode that bombshell. Consequently, there was haggling without end. I believe the consensus among the hundred-odd correspondents who were reporting the hearing was that Representative Bulwinkle of North Carolina, a Democrat and the chairman, reflected no particular credit upon himself or the committee as inquisitors. Criticism of Representative McGugin, a Republican from Kansas, also was heard, for Mr. McGugin went just as far in supporting the witness as Mr. Bulwinkle did in harrassing him.

In the background of the committee haggling, stood the tall, gray-haired figure of "Jim" Reed. Senator Reed, when he was in the senate, was probably the most feared of all debaters. His vitriolic retorts and cutting statements seldom failed to make spines quiver. His presence as Doctor Wirt's counsel failed at first to check Mr. Bulwinkle, but the fact that he was there provided Mr. McGugin with assurance of help in any battle of words.

Certain evidence of people's views always is reflected in congress rather quickly after changes in sentiment take place, and it is no different now. There was a time during the first months of President Roosevelt's administration when anything he sent to congress was put through, and no questions were asked. Currently, however, there is a disposition among members of both political parties in congress to inquire into the character of legislation they are putting through. For example, the bill that the President wanted for controlling the security exchanges, like the New York Stock Exchange, was advertised by Democratic leaders at first as being ready to go through without question. Mr. Roosevelt said he wanted "teeth" in it, and teeth were put in it, plenty of them. Indeed, the proposed legislation would have left little of the stock exchange to operate. Rigid control was a mild expression compared with that original stock market bill.

Wake Up, Then Fight

Stock exchange members, brokerage houses and plain investors suddenly awakened to the fact that the bill was going to do things to them. They started to fight. They found responsive chords in the house and senate. Reason and logic, as opponents of the bill understood those words, began to prevail and, presently, rumors of proposed changes in the measure began to crop up. And what's more, the changes began to be accepted by a majority of the committees that had the bill in charge, despite frequent reiterations by Senator Fletcher, chairman of the senate banking committee, and Chairman Rayburn, of the house Interstate Commerce committee, that the President wanted the teeth left in.

It is to be admitted, I think, that there was a lot of monkey-doodle business going on among some members of security exchanges. My belief is that they did not always give the individual investors in stocks a fair shake. But some of the reformers included in the administration's brain trust appear to have overlooked the good in whatever amount it exists in the stock exchanges.

But, to get to the point of the story. Many persons hold to the view that the government should not spread a parental wing too far over private affairs. It has been done already beyond the anticipation of a majority of the people. They want to be free to deal in stocks, to speculate, even to gamble, if you please, without having bureaucracy here in Washington to tell them what to do.

The legislation will go through eventually. Of that there is no doubt. In its final form, however, it will not be the handiwork of the reformers. There will be reforms brought about by it, only they will be for the purposes of correcting abuses and not for the purpose of trying out theories on somebody's money.

Summer Velvets for Day, Evening

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THERE is big news in the fabric world — summer velvets! And when we say summer velvets we mean real summer velvets, not to be confused with the lightweight velvets such as are always used for wraps, trimmings and accessories in the summer.

These summer velvets are new, so new they are being shown for the first time. Already the fame of these made-in-America velvets has spread among leading style creators, both in London and Paris, who are fashioning some of their most fetching summer apparel of these fascinating weaves.

It's the new washable velvets which perhaps bring the greatest thrill. No, your eyes have not deceived you, you are reading about velvets which actually wash, and perfectly at that. These exquisite washable velvet weaves make one marvel at the miracles which science and chemistry and artistry combined are working in the fabric realm in this Twentieth century era of progress. A velvet as beautiful as fancy can picture in a variety of designful weaves and delectable colors, which tubs as easily and satisfactorily as your linens and muslins is well worth thinking about. It is a real achievement.

For resort or cruise or country wear we can think of no more practical, at the same time lovely, evening gown than one of shell pink crinkle washable velvet such as a prominent French designer includes in her summer collection. If you prefer other than pink there is a whole range of beguiling tones and tints in these crinkle wash velvets from which to make choice.

One of the latest innovations is a cotton velvet woven on a cotton loom. It also is washable. It comes in several clever patternings, polka-dotted effects on a sheer self-colored background being conspicuously smart at this time when the dotted theme is so voguish. The pale chartreuse green summer velvet which fashions the gracefully ruffled informal dinner frock posed in the foreground of the illustration is a sheer, fine cotton with self-colored dots. The wide velvet ribbon sash in a delicate orange tone completes a breath-taking color scheme of springtime loveliness. Orchids and gardenias form the corsage, for the fashion of wearing natural flowers has been revived.

For sportswear there is nothing smarter in the way of the new summer velvets than a corded weave which is printed in multi-colored Mexican stripes. See the swagger coat made of it, as illustrated to the right in the group. The silk scarf repeats the bright green of one of the stripes. In this same category of summer sports velvets another effect registers which is very striking in two-tone stripes, brown with pink beige being especially attractive.

A wonderful new summer velvet done in a tweedy herring bone weave has just the right look for travel and town wear. The tremendously good-looking coat to the left in the picture is made of this type of velvet. Its "classy" shirtwaist styling and its huge brown buttons give it distinction.

KNIT FABRICS NOW LOOK LIKE TWEEDS

Fashion dotes on confusing us by bringing out wools that look like silk, cottons that look like wool, and synthetic fabrics that look like a little bit of both.

Then, just when we think we can write authoritatively about the new fabrics, she raises the question "Who said knits couldn't look like tweeds?"

Anny Blatt, Paris designer of knitwear, answers the question in handknit town clothes that feature diagonal stripes of dark, soft green wool yarn and white cotton.

And in New York Emmy Wylie receives fashion recognition as the newest American designer (there are likely to be others before we go to press—they're springing up all around) who handles the tried and true yarns with a light touch.

Her collection is well worth seeing and includes models priced at $22.75 to $39.75. You will like a tweed mixture called "Frostknit." Citron is a grand color that borders on antique gold, smart with navy contrast.

Bathing Suits in Taffeta Like Costumes for Ballet

Taffeta bathing suits that look more like ballet costumes than swimming outfits will doubtless dot our more fashionable beaches next summer—the fad has already started in Paris with folks who have nothing else to do, have gone south to stretch and leave the world to go to pot if it wants to. These taffeta "beach jewels" as one house names them (because of their brilliant coloring) are equipped with taffeta tights and the whole ensemble is waterproof so that when you come out of the wavelets you are as crisp and unwilted as when you went in.

In Full Sail

Warp-print taffetas are being used extensively for evening wear. They lend themselves particularly well to the newest of all silhouettes—the "ship in full sail."

VERY SMART LINEN

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Linen is playing a stellar role on the stage of fashion. Here is an ensemble done in fine Irish linen which is modish and practical for spectator sports. The beauty of this outfit is that it can be converted into a costume for active participation if occasion requires. The suit, with its smart brown and white checked swagger coat of tweedy linen, is appropriate for the clubhouse porch or the street, combined either with brown or beige accessories. Removing the coat a slim sleeveless dress is revealed of unerushable Irish linen ready for a set of tennis or a round of golf. The beige gloves which this youthful sportswoman wears are crocheted of knitting and crochet cotton in a mesh design. They are cool and easy to make.

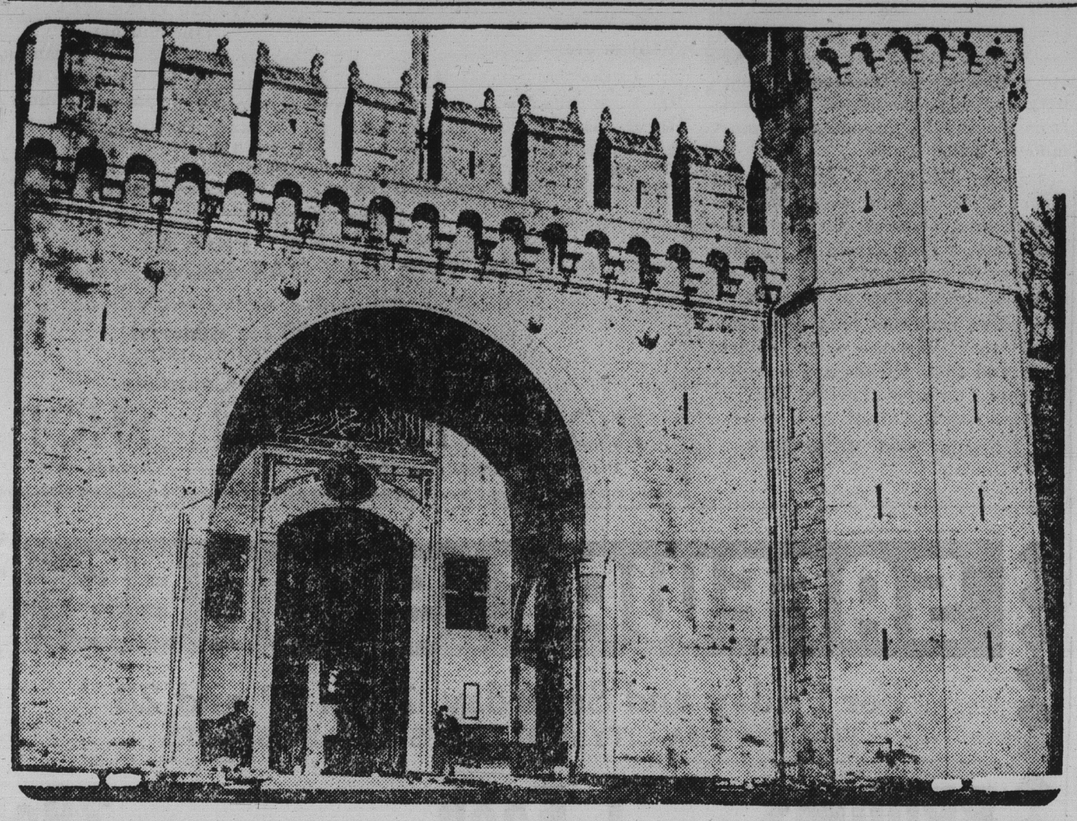
Imposing Defenses of a Bloodier Turkish Age



CHARACTERISTIC of the new Turkey is the fact that the harem of the Ottoman sultans, who for centuries tyrannized over the Near East, has been transformed into a museum, and the casual visitor may wander through precincts once more closely guarded than any other in all the world. The harem was the most luxurious of women's prisons—for prison it was for its inhabitants—with its elaborate entrances, pillared courtyards, beautiful mosaics and jeweled treasures, including a throne inlaid with 25,000 pearls and a cradle inlaid with 120,000 pearls. In the days of its glory the harem contained from 300 to 400 women at a time. Four of these were the legal wives of the sultan, in accordance with the teachings of the Koran, and the others were attendants of the wives. The picture shows the fortress-like entrance to the palace, which represents several centuries of building.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE STRANGER WITH THE BEAUTIFUL COAT

PETER RABBIT never will forget the first time he saw Glory the Cardinal, sometimes called Redbird. He had just hopped over the Old Orchard when a beautiful clear, loud whistle drew his eyes to the top of an apple tree. With a little gasp of sheer astonishment and delight Peter stopped short. He couldn't quite believe that he saw what he thought he saw. He hadn't supposed that anyone even among the feathered folk could be quite so beautiful.

The stranger was dressed all in red except a little black around the base of his bill. Even his bill was red. He wore a beautiful red crest, which made him still more distinguished looking. And how he could sing!

Of course Peter lost no time in hunting up Jenny Wren. "Who is it, Jenny? Who is that beautiful stranger with such a lovely song?" cried Peter as soon as he caught sight of Jenny.

"Glory the Cardinal," replied Jenny Wren promptly. "Isn't he the loveliest thing you've ever seen? If I were Mrs. Cardinal I'm afraid I should be jealous. There she is in the very same tree with him. Did you ever see such a difference?"

Instead of the beautiful red of Glory, Mrs. Cardinal wore a very dull dress. Her back was a brownish-gray and her throat a grayish-black. Her breast was a dull buff with a faint tinge of red. Her wings and tail were tinged with dull red. But if she wasn't handsomely dressed she could sing. In fact, she was almost as good a singer as her handsome husband.

"I've noticed," said Peter, "that people with fine clothes spend most of their time thinking about them and are of very little use when it comes to real work in life."

"Well, you needn't think that of Glory," declared Jenny in her vigorous way. "He's just as fine as he is handsome. He's a model husband. If they make their home around here you will find him doing his full share in the care of their babies. Sometimes they raise two families. When they do that Glory takes care of the first lot of youngsters as soon as they are able to leave the nest, so that Mrs. Cardinal has nothing to worry about while sitting on the second lot of eggs. Everybody loves Glory. Excuse me, Peter, I'm going over to find out if they're really going to stay."

When Jenny returned she was so excited she couldn't keep still a minute. "They like it here, Peter!" she cried. "If they can find a place to suit them they are going to stay. My, they will add a lot to the quality of this neighborhood!"

Mr. and Mrs. Cardinal whistled and sang as if their hearts were bursting with joy and Peter sat around listening as if he had nothing else to do.

A Perfect Sailor

Navy taffeta stitched in white, plus a lacquered feather smartly placed, results in the perfect sailor.

Mother's Cook Book

CULINARY KINKS

A GOOD soup is almost an indispensable part of the day's menu. Soup, like salad, may be made from almost anything with flavor. Those who have a soup pot always ready with stock may have countless variations, but for the small family bouillon cubes or beef extract are a great boon. A good soup stock may be made from vegetables with a cube or two of meat flavor or a teaspoon of extract.

Vegetable Soup.

Slice one large onion, a small turnip three stalks of celery, three dozen peppercorns, six cloves, a stick of cinnamon and three bay leaves, the same amount of parsley, thyme, and summer savory. Cover with plenty of cold water and simmer for two hours. Strain through a coarse muslin, and for each quart of vegetable liquor add a teaspoonful of extract or two cubes. Boil up and serve. From this stock, with gelatin, one may have a good flavored aspic.

Split Pea Soup.

This is especially appetizing when carefully prepared. Soak the peas over night, then put them on to cook with an onion and a half pound or more of salt pork (one may use pigs' hocks, a ham bone or fresh pork if one prefers). Cook slowly for hours until the peas are thoroughly cooked and the fat pork well done. Serve with small cubes of the pork in each soup dish. For a pound of peas and the same of pork one may use at least two quarts of water. This will serve a large family with a bowl of nourishing soup.

Potted Fish.

Pick cold cooked fish into pieces, season with salt, pepper, mace and place in a jar. Cover with cloth moistened with flour paste, stand the jars in water and bake one hour. When done remove the cloth; when cold, pound and cover with melted butter and then with the paper and egg white as above.

One may use a mixture of meats such as chicken and veal for potting, making a mixture that cannot be distinguished from all chicken.

A LITTLE SECRET SMILE

By Anne Campbell.

WE SAT and talked beneath the trees,
A scarlet bird sang from the wall.
The wind blew silver harmonies,
And Paula did not speak at all.

Of those who shared the garden close,
She was the only prisoner;
She and a flaunting yellow rose
From the green garden could not stir.

In her low chair she sat apart,
Her trusted crutches by her side,
Her eyes the mirror of her heart,
Her busy hands a sign of pride.

And as we spoke of many things,
The changing world, the lengthening mile,
She watched the flirt of redbird's wings,
And smiled a little, secret smile.

Across her countenance it went,
As sunlight flits upon the sea;
And watching her, I grew content
With life, and all it gave to me.

In that gay group of women none
Abjured the world but she. . . . The grace
Of her sweet spirit met the sun
And played upon her classic face. . . .

First Use of Paper Money

Paper money has performed an important part in the history of these United States. Adopted as a matter of necessity, and not from choice, by the Massachusetts Bay Colony, in 1690, it was gradually issued by other colonies until in general use by all. It was the original intention of the Colonies to have it equal current coin, but depreciation took place, followed by succeeding issues of paper money, until it became practically worthless.

Juniors All On Tiptoe For Prom Tonight

The Juniors tonight are all set for one of the big annual events of the high school. "The Big Event", if anyone should ask a Junior about the "Junior Prom." It opens in Armory hall at the fashionable hour with Allen's celebrated Jazeteers, from Marysville, providing the most modern dance music.

Unique decorations carrying out bower effect of wild wood, the gay class colors accenting the motif here and there, a floor carefully groomed to carry its freight of happy students tripping to the tunes of Terpsicore.
